(The type of procedure depends on the legal basis proposed by the draft act.)

Amendments to a draft act

Amendments by Parliament set out in two columns

Deletions are indicated in bold italics in the left-hand column. Replacements are indicated in bold italics in both columns. New text is indicated in bold italics in the right-hand column.

The first and second lines of the header of each amendment identify the relevant part of the draft act under consideration. If an amendment pertains to an existing act that the draft act is seeking to amend, the amendment heading includes a third line identifying the existing act and a fourth line identifying the provision in that act that Parliament wishes to amend.

Amendments by Parliament in the form of a consolidated text

New text is highlighted in bold italics. Deletions are indicated using either the ■ symbol or ~~strikeout~~. Replacements are indicated by highlighting the new text in bold italics and by deleting or striking out the text that has been replaced.

By way of exception, purely technical changes made by the drafting departments in preparing the final text are not highlighted.

DRAFT EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT LEGISLATIVE RESOLUTION

on the proposal for a regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council Laying down rules to prevent and combat child sexual abuse
(COM(2022)0209 – C9-0174/2022 – 2022/0155(COD))

(Ordinary legislative procedure: first reading)

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the Commission proposal to Parliament and the Council (COM(2022)0209),
 - having regard to Article 294(2) of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, pursuant to which the Commission submitted the proposal to Parliament (C9-0174/2022),
 - having regard to Article 294(3) of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union,
 - having regard to the reasoned opinions submitted, within the framework of Protocol No 1 and 2 to the EU Treaties, by the Spanish Parliament, the Netherlands Senate, the Irish Houses of the Oireachtas, the French Senate and the Czech Chamber of Deputies,
 - having regard to the opinion of the European Economic and Social Committee of 18 April 2023¹,
 - having regard to Rules 59 and 41 of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on Civil Liberties, Justice and Home Affairs (A9-0000/2023),
1. Adopts its position at first reading hereinafter set out;
 2. Approves its statement annexed to this resolution, which will be published in the L series of the Official Journal of the European Union together with the final legislative act;
 3. Calls on the Commission to refer the matter to Parliament again if it replaces, substantially amends or intends to substantially amend its proposal;
 4. Instructs its President to forward its position to the Council, the Commission and the national parliaments.

Amendment 1

Proposal for a regulation

Recital 2

Text proposed by the Commission

(2) Given the central importance of relevant information society services, those aims can only be achieved by ensuring that providers offering such services in the Union behave responsibly and take reasonable measures to minimise the risk of their services being misused for the purpose of child sexual abuse, those providers often being the only ones in a position to prevent and combat such abuse. The measures taken should be targeted, carefully balanced and proportionate, so as to avoid any undue negative consequences for those who use the services for lawful purposes, in particular for the exercise of their fundamental rights protected under Union law, that is, those enshrined in the Charter and recognised as general principles of Union law, and so as to avoid imposing any excessive burdens on the providers of the services.

(2) Given the central importance of relevant information society services, those aims can only be achieved by ensuring that providers offering such services in the Union behave responsibly and take reasonable measures to minimise the risk of their services being misused for the purpose of child sexual abuse, those providers often being in a unique position to prevent and combat such abuse. The measures taken should be effective, targeted, carefully balanced and proportionate, so as to avoid any undue negative consequences for those who use the services for lawful purposes, in particular for the exercise of their fundamental rights protected under Union law, that is, those enshrined in the Charter and recognised as general principles of Union law, and so as to avoid imposing any excessive burdens on the providers of the services.

Amendment

(5) In order to achieve the objectives of this Regulation, it should cover providers of services that have the potential to be misused for the purpose of online child sexual abuse. As they are increasingly misused for that purpose, those services should include publicly available interpersonal communications services, such as messaging services and web-based e-mail services, in so far as those service as publicly available. As services which enable direct interpersonal and interactive exchange of information merely as a minor ancillary feature that is intrinsically linked to another service, such as chat and similar functions as part of gaming, image-sharing and video-hosting are equally at risk of misuse, they should also be covered by this Regulation. However, given the inherent differences between the various relevant information society services covered by this Regulation and the related varying risks that those services are misused for the purpose of online child sexual abuse and varying ability of the providers concerned to prevent and combat such abuse, the obligations imposed on the providers of those services should be differentiated in an appropriate manner.

(20) With a view to ensuring effective prevention and fight against online child sexual abuse, when mitigating measures are deemed insufficient to limit the risk of misuse of a certain service for the purpose of online child sexual abuse, the Coordinating Authorities designated by Member States under this Regulation should be empowered to request the issuance of detection orders. In order to avoid any undue interference with fundamental rights and to ensure proportionality, that power should be subject to a carefully balanced set of limits and safeguards. For instance, considering that child sexual abuse material tends to be disseminated through hosting services and publicly available interpersonal communications services, and that solicitation of children mostly takes place in publicly available interpersonal communications services, it should only be possible to address detection orders to providers of such services.

(21) Furthermore, as parts of those limits and safeguards, detection orders should only be issued after a diligent and objective assessment leading to the finding of a significant risk of the specific service concerned being misused for a given type of online child sexual abuse covered by this Regulation. One of the elements to be taken into account in this regard is the likelihood that the service is used to an appreciable extent, that is, beyond isolated and relatively rare instances, for such abuse. The criteria should vary so as to account of the different characteristics of the various types of online child sexual abuse at stake and of the different characteristics of the services used to engage in such abuse, as well as the related different degree of intrusiveness of the measures to be taken to execute the detection order.

(23) In addition, to avoid undue interference with fundamental rights and ensure proportionality, when it is established that those requirements have been met and a detection order is to be issued, it should still be ensured that the detection order is targeted and specified so as to ensure that any such negative consequences for affected parties do not go beyond what is strictly necessary to effectively address the significant risk identified. This should concern, in particular, a limitation to an identifiable part or component of the service where possible without prejudice to the effectiveness of the measure, such as specific types of channels of a publicly available interpersonal communications service, or to specific users or specific groups of users, to the extent that they can be taken in isolation for the purpose of detection, as well as the specification of the safeguards additional to the ones already expressly specified in this Regulation, such as independent auditing, the provision of additional information or access to data, or reinforced human oversight and review, and the further limitation of the duration of application of the detection order that the Coordinating Authority deems necessary. To avoid unreasonable or disproportionate outcomes, such requirements should be set after an objective and diligent assessment conducted on a case-by-case basis.

Amendment

(23) In addition, to avoid undue interference with fundamental rights and ensure proportionality, when it is established that those requirements have been met and a detection order is to be issued, it should still be ensured that the detection order is justified, proportionate or related to the specific service, users or group of users, targeted and limited in time so as to ensure that any such negative consequences for affected parties do not go beyond what is strictly necessary to effectively address the significant risk identified. This should concern, in particular, a limitation to an identifiable part or component of the service, such as specific types of channels of a publicly available interpersonal communications service, or to specific users or specific groups of users, to the extent that they can be taken in isolation for the purpose of detection, as well as the specification of the safeguards additional to the ones already expressly specified in this Regulation, such as independent auditing, the provision of additional information or access to data, or reinforced human oversight and review, and the further limitation of the duration of application of the detection order that the Coordinating Authority deems necessary. (26 a) End-to-end encryption is an important tool to guarantee the security and confidentiality of the communications of users, including those of children. Any weakening of the end-to-end encryption could potentially be abused by malicious third parties. Nothing in this Regulation should therefore be interpreted as prohibiting or weakening end-to-end encryption. However, to the extent strictly necessary and proportionate to mitigate the risk of misuse of their services for the purpose of online child sexual abuse, providers should be authorised by the competent judicial authority or another independent administrative authority to process metadata that can detect suspicious patterns of behaviour without having access to the content of the encrypted communication.

(29) Providers of hosting services and providers of publicly available interpersonal communications services are uniquely positioned to detect potential online child sexual abuse involving their services. The information that they may obtain when offering their services is often indispensable to effectively investigate and prosecute child sexual abuse offences. Therefore, upon obtaining actual knowledge or awareness on potential child sexual abuse on their services, they should act expeditiously to remove or to disable access to that content and to report it to the EU Centre in accordance with this Regulation. Encrypted services and metadata processing

1. Nothing in this Regulation shall be interpreted as prohibiting or weakening end-to-end encryption.

2. On the basis of the risk assessment submitted and, where applicable, further information, the Coordinating Authority of establishment shall have the power to request the competent judicial authority of the Member State that designated it or another independent administrative authority of that Member State to authorise a provider of hosting services or a provider of interpersonal communications services to process metadata to the extent strictly necessary and proportionate to mitigate the risk of misuse of their services for the purpose of online child sexual abuse.

When assessing whether to request the processing of metadata, the Coordinating Authority shall take into account the interference with the rights to privacy and data protection of the users of the service that such a processing entails and determine whether, in that case, the processing of metadata would be effective in mitigating the risk of use of the service for the purpose of child sexual abuse, strictly necessary and proportionate.

3. EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

The Rapporteur welcomes the European Commission's legislative proposal laying down rules to prevent and combat child sexual abuse. It is urgent to establish a long-term regulatory framework capable of giving an answer according to the magnitude of the problem: internet service providers in Europe are the largest hosts of child sexual abuse material in the world.

The rapporteur shares the need to migrate from a voluntary system to detect, report and take down child sexual abuse material to a mandatory one. The current Interim Regulation (Regulation (EU) 2021/1232) meant a remarkable progress in the legislative approach on tackling child sexual abuse online but it has been proven insufficient due to an uneven commitment or engagement on the side of the relevant information society services.

Likewise, he supports the approach based on the assessment conducted by each provider of the risks of their services being misused for the purpose of child sexual abuse. Previously introduced by the Digital Service Act (Regulation (EU) 2022/2065), the risk assessment should be the basis for reporting those risks and implementing the necessary measures to mitigate them.

The rapporteur also agrees that these rules should be laid down in a technology-neutral and a future-proof manner. Thus, providers will not be required to use any specific technology and, consequently, will not be asked to do what is not legally feasible or technologically viable according to the state of the art. This approach will definitely contribute and encourage innovation. It is crucial for the legislative framework to keep the pace of technological progress which will deliver new tools to prevent and combat online child sexual abuse.

A key guiding principle of the rapporteur's report, aligned with the Proposal, is the compliance with the prohibition of a general monitoring obligation enshrined in European legislation and case-law of the European Court of Justice. The rapporteur welcomes the set of safeguards introduced in the proposal and the EDPB-EDPS Joint Opinion 04/2022 as a major contribution which has been taken into account in the drafting of this report.

The rapporteur considers that end-to-end encryption is an important tool to guarantee the security and confidentiality of the communications of users, including those of children. Consequently, nothing in this Regulation should be interpreted as prohibiting or weakening end-to-end encryption, while the Regulation remains open, where applicable, to existing and future technological developments.

To the extent strictly necessary and proportionate to mitigate the risk of misuse of their services for the purpose of online child sexual abuse, providers should be authorised by the competent judicial authority or another independent administrative authority to process metadata that can detect suspicious patterns of behaviour without having access to the content of the encrypted communication.

Having stated the guiding principles of the rapporteur's report, the specific proposals of the rapporteur are listed below:

Regarding the scope of application, the rapporteur considers that it should cover online search engines and any other artificial intelligence systems, both of which will be subject to delisting orders.

Concerning detection orders and its consequent detection obligations, the rapporteur is of the view that they should cover not only the dissemination of material previously detected and confirmed as constituting child sexual abuse material (known material), but also material not previously detected that is likely to constitute child sexual abuse material but has not yet been confirmed as such (new material), as well as activities constituting the solicitation of children (grooming). The Interim Regulation already covers the three instances of online child sexual abuse material. Limiting the scope of the child sexual abuse material covered by the Regulation would undoubtedly mean a setback in the fight against sexual abuse of minors.

The rapporteur is of the opinion that detection orders have to be a mechanism of last resort that might entail a negative reputational component for those providers who do not comply with the obligations established in the Regulation.

In order to stress detection orders as a mechanism of last resort, the rapporteur proposes reinforcing prevention as part of the mitigation measures to be taken by relevant society communication services. Mitigation measures may include targeted measures to protect the rights of the child, including safety and security design for children by default, functionalities enabling age assurance and age scoring, age-appropriate parental control tools, allowing flagging and/or notifying mechanisms, self-reporting functionalities, or participating in codes of conduct for protecting children.

The rapporteur puts forward the establishment of a complementary mechanism: voluntary detection orders. The voluntary detection orders will not only contribute to make mandatory detection orders a measure of last resort, but will also cover a possible gap between the entry into force and the effective application of the new Regulation.

Moreover, it needs to be taken into account that the Interim Regulation, which currently enables providers to continue lawful detection, reporting and removal of online child sexual abuse from their services on a voluntary basis, lapses on the 3rd of August 2024.

Consequently, the rapporteur proposes that, where applicable, providers should assess in their risk assessment, in a separate section, the voluntary use of specific technologies for the processing of personal data and other data to the extent strictly necessary to detect, report and remove online child sexual abuse on their services. Based on this separated assessment, providers may request to the competent Coordinating Authority the need of continuing, as part of their mitigation measures, using specific technologies for the processing of personal data and other data for this purposes. Following this request of the provider, the competent Coordinating Authority shall have the power to request the competent judicial authority of the Member State that designated it or another independent administrative authority of that Member State to issue an order that authorizes the provider to maintain or implement mitigation measures that consist of using specific technologies for the processing of personal and other data to the extent strictly necessary to detect, report and remove online child sexual abuse on their services.

The rapporteur welcomes and expresses his strong support for the creation of a European Union Agency to prevent and combat child sexual abuse, the EU Centre on Child Sexual Abuse. He considers that a greater role has to be given to victims/survivors. Accordingly, the report proposes setting up a Victims' Consultative Forum. The rapporteur highlights the importance of the cooperation between authorities and civil society organizations acting in the public interest, including hotlines, whose contribution to the fight against child sexual abuse has to be acknowledge.

Regarding the seat of the EU Center, the rapporteur considers that it is necessary to align the provisions of the proposal with the recent case-law of the European Court of Justice. Additionally, the rapporteur has introduced some changes in the proposal to rebalance the tasks assigned to the Executive Director and the Management Board of the EU Centre.
